Radio frequency identification (RFID) technology provides a method for automatic identification of objects and is known to be used in access control. For example, access to a building or a room within the building can be controlled by the RFID reader detecting an RFID tag within the reader's interrogation field. The RFID reader also communicates with a host processor, which may be part of a network of host processors which serve the entire building. Electronic devices such as RFID readers can be relatively large, and the component parts of the device can be quite expensive. For example, the RFID reader can contain multiple transceivers, each of which can be manufactured using a relatively expensive component. Further, it may be that a multi-transceiver RFID reader is needed for a particular application, thereby increasing the expense of the RFID reader.Q: Explanation on the logic behind the proof of Abel-Ruffini theorem The Theorem: Let SA,B,C,DS be four polynomials. If the sum of the degrees of SA,B,C,DS is greater than or equal to 5, then the number of common roots of SA,B,C,DS is greater than or equal to S1S. The proof of the theorem is in the following link. 82157476af
